Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Signs of a big political storm rolling up from the rural regions of this country begin to darken the bright, sunny, New Deal skys. The farmers, the down-to-earth food producers of this country have been kicked until they are on the point of rebellion. In fact the revolt is already underway as was attested in the November election. It was the rural vote that turned most of the defeated congressmen out to pature.

The rebellion of the farmers will be augmented by the discontented miners in the gold camps of the country. After the horse is stolen, Congressman Englebright, Senators McCarren and Murray, and other western congressmen become prodigiously busy locking the stable. It is true they were given a chance to protest, a two-day chance, but where were they when this drive against the gold mining industry was cooking? All of us in the big Second Congressional district will wonder as we walk through the silent streets of our communities. The grass is not growing in our streets yet, but that is not their fault. Where were all these representatives of the "golden" west (What an adjectitive!) when our mining industry was quietly led into the laboratory of New Deal experimeht and given quietus shots. Well, no one can say. We do know that no so very long ago they were busy on getting themselves congressional pensions and unlimited gas.

So when the reckoning comes in another two years, we firmly believe that there will be more new faces in congress than there will be in January next. The embattled farmers and the miners will not distinguish much between Democrats and Republicans. All they will want to know it: "Who dunnit?" Any answer that passes the buck to the bureaucrats wont do. The present administration has been as fertile as a fish in laying eggs for new bureaus. Remember, it was only about a year ago that the president himself had a chart made of the bureaus and the relation of one to another, so that he could find his way around among them. The voters are at length waking up to the fact that congress, itself, is responsible for the spawn of bureaucracy in Washington, and for the hustle and bustle of elbow rib-jabbing and bunion stomping resulting from bureaucratic rivalries. Let us all remember that congress by voting away its powers, long before Pearl Harbor, created most of these bureaus. And now Congressman Tom, Dick and Harry must go before this many faced creation of theirs, humbly bending the suppliant knee with begging bowls outstretched.

Probably the farmers have the greater grievance. Apparently Clem Whitaker thinks so, for here is what he says:

"The recent statement of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, that farmers must work from "dawn to dusk" to meet the food production problem—in face of a previous statement by President Roosevelt that the 40 hour week would be continued in unban war industries, as workers grew tired and inefficient if they put in longer hours—served to point up one of the inconsistencies in New Deal handling of the war production effort.

"Farmers, as a matter of fact, have been working from "dawn to dusk" throughout the war emergency—averaging from a 60 to a 70-hour week, with no over-time for extra hours—and they bitterly resented Wickard's whip-cracking gesture, particularly in view of the fact that Washington had turned down appeals for a longer work-week in city industries.

"On top of that came further announcement from Washington that farmers who failed to meet

-WHAT ABOUT GOLD-

By EDW. C. UREN

Just a few weeks ago a round table discussion of the future of gold took place among a group of University of California professors. The most optimistic believed that if the war lasts two years longer gold will go to $400 an ounce. Others of course had ideas somewhat less inflated, but they all, without exception, agreed that nothing could take the place of gold as the standard of value.

We have heard people say "What good does that 22 billion in gold do, stored away underground at Fort Knox?" It may as well be lead or iron as far as the good it does us."

Well, this just isn't true, because that gold and the gold still under these hills in Nevada County, is going to play a very important part in our lives when this war is over.

Gold was first used as money, according to history, in 1920 B. C. That is 38 centuries ago. When Lord Carnavan in 1922 reopened the sepulcher of King Tutankhamen near Luxor, in the Valley of the Nile above Cairo, the Scientific American published a number of pictures of the beautifully designed ornaments and death mask of this young Pharaoh made from gold. And King Tut used to beat his women about the year 1350 B. C.

History tells us that Frederick II of Germany, in the year 1224, during the shortage of gold, had made a coinage of stamped leather bearing his promise to pay in gold. It is anticipated that Hitler will follow the same footsteps in 1943, although his leather will be ersatz.

We hold no monopoly on the yellow metal, for gold is the world wide standard of value. With gold you can buy a Hottentot's bride in darkest Africa or the niftiest debutante on Fifth Avenue. With gold the humblest Jew can obtain a certificate from Hitler that he is of the purest Aryan extraction. With gold you can buy almost anything but health and a clear conscience. With gold we are going to knock Hirohito—Son of ——, so hard that his front teeth will bite off his tail.

When supplies were badly needed at Bataan for our boys in the Philipines last Spring efforts were made to run the Jap blockade with ships on two or more occasions. Two out of three ships were lost in the venture, but the men who understook this dangerous mission refused to do it for paper money or for checks or drafts; they demanded, and got, gold coin of the realm.

In the recent surprising successes of the American Army in North Africa mention has been made in the news dispatches of the loss of some $18,000 in coin by the overturning of a landing boat. This makes us suspicious that some of the manna from Fort Knox has been used with discretion to grease the skids in Algeria.

Not long ago a certain contractor from the bay area who had just completed a building here—an ardent New Dealer—surprised my by saying "We are going to get away from gold. It is not necessary any longer." His argument was, in effect, that the nation's productive capacity plus its natural resources should represent the true standard of value, instead of gold. Unfortunately however these, unlike gold, are subject to deterioraton and to destruction.

We must of necessity have some common standard of value. Either that or we must trade by barter, as this party proposed. One nation might reasonably barter with another for products one might not have, but when it comes to communities the situation would become comic. For instance, imagine Si Sofge lugging a 20 pound Hubbard squash from his Willow Valley farm to trade for a pound of hamburber, or tendering Bill Wright a couple of heads of lettuce for advising him how to keep out of jail. Imagine pleading with Tom Richards for a couple of ounces of Epsom Salts while baiting him with a cucumber or Lyman Gilmore trying to trade a used tire for a haircut.

When a man works he wants to be assured that he will be paid in something that will not diminish in buying power. Paper money in itself, has no value. It is a promise to pay, backed by gold and silver.

If you will look at a one dollar bill you will see that it states "There is on deposit in the Treasury of the United States of America One Dollar in Silver payable on demand." A ten dollar bill states that it is redeemable in lawful money at the U. S. Treasury on demand. The $10 bill is a Federal Reserve Note and Federal Reserve Notes are given the seller of gold when the gold is turned over to the mint. They are, in effect, the gold sellers credit slips.

There is some question as to whether we really are off the gold standard after all. In reality we are only off it insofar as the rights of the individual is concerned in buying, selling or holding gold. In fact the Federal Reserve Bulletin says that "we are operating in a manner that does not differ in economic effect from those of the old gold standard."

Perhaps it was wise to take gold out of circulation in order to keep people from hoarding it, for the Cousin Jacks aren't the only ones who believe that "God put un there and why shouldn't 'ee belong to we."

The price of gold was first advanced from $20.67 to $30 an ounce by Great Britain in 1931. At that time her trade was in a depressed condition because Germany, in order to increase her gold reserves, had been dumping manufactured goods in large quantities at prices with which England could not compete. By this device Britain cheapened her dollar by one third and was able to meet German competition successfully.

Then in 1932 on account of labor being in control and demanding continued high wages Britain went off the gold standard altogether, with the result that while wages remained high, the cost of living more than doubled.

On account of the trade advantages accruing to England the United States found itself in much the same position, with the result that in 1933 we not only went off the gold standard but went Britain one better by marking up the price of gold to $35 an ounce; so we became the Santa Claus to all gold producing countries, with consequent cheaper dollars.

And when we say the cheaper dollar, it can best be understood by the simple statement that where an ounce of gold could formerly be purchased for $20, it now requires $35; therefore the purchasing power of the dollar has been decreased by 60 per cent.

As a matter of fact however, within the borders of the states up to the time of this war, there has been no such depreciation in the actual purchasing power of the dollar in the hands of the consumer.

TIN CANS WILL BE PICKED UP IN JANUARY

With the recent successful pickup of several tons of tin can scrap in Nevada City and Grass Valley, Captain J. E. Blake of the Nevada County Salvage Committee, has announced that the residential and business house pickups will be monthly and urges housewives and stoores to save and prepare their scrap tin for the January collection as they did for the December gathering.

Captain Blake was particularly enthusiastic over the response of housewives in Nevada City and Grass Valley, calling them the "backbone" of the salvage for tin. In Nevada City alone more than a ton and a half of tin scrap was collected and in most instances the cans were firmly compressed and placed in cartons at the sidewalk curb.

This type of cooperation eases the work of the free will collecting by beverage trucks and volunteers.

A meeting was held recently of representatives of the Red Cross from Marysville, Yuba City, Colusa, Nevada City and Grass Valley to discuss details of the work, under direction of Raymond Clinch as chairman. Frances McQuiston of Grass Valley and Mrs. Paul Kemper of Nevada City.

They have appealed for small mrrors, pencils, small dictioaries, combs, ash trays, lotions, wash cloths, playing cards and soap. An equivalent of 35 cents worth of artcles will be put in each box.

It is urged that these articles be left in the Chapter House in Grass Valley where the boxes will be filled and wrapped.

In addition, Nevada City and Grass Valley have been asked to furnish decorations for ten large Christmas trees. This work will be done by Junior Red Cross, Boy Scout and Girl Scout Troops.

The packages must be wrapped by December 20th and it is necessary that the work be expedited so that the hospitalized boys at Camp Beale may have their Christmas gifts on Christmas Eve.

CAROLS TO SOUND FROM 2000 FEET UNDERGROUND

An intensive series of rehearsals have been begun by the Grass Valley Cornish Carol Singers, who will broadcast Christmas carols over CBC on Christmas eve from 2,000 feet underground in the Idaho Maryland mine. William Goggins of the mine staff, is in charge of arrangements. The rehearsals are conducted by Harold George music instructor of the Grass Valley high school. John Nankervis is president of the organization.

The broadcast will be heard at 5:30 p. m. Pacific war time on December 24.

N. C. RED CROSS COMMITTEE TO MEET TONIGHT

SLEEPING MAN OBSTRUCTS ROAD

Answering a phone call that a man, sound asleep in the middle of a snow covered road, was odbstructing traffic, Deputy Sheriff Bill Woods hurried out the Bloomfield road, found several cars had stopped. The drivers were afraid to turn out to the edge of the road in the snow to by-pass the man. Woods identified the man as Eldon Williams residing near the White Spot. He found a half-filled demijohn of wine beside the sleeper, woke him up, emptied the wine, and brought him into the county jail to continue his slumber.

Elwood Stone, fire dispatcher Tahoe National Forest, Mrs. Stone and sons enjoyed a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Nichols of Forest Hill Sunday.

REGISTRATION OF 18-YEAR OLDS OPENS FRIDAY

About 60 youths according to the estimate of Merle Morrison Selective Service Board, who have become 18 years of age since last June 30, or will become 18 before December 31, will take the first steps toward induction into the armed forces of the United States during the period starting tomorrow and ending December 31st.

The Nevada County Selective Service Board announces there will be three periods for registration. Between Friday and December 17th, there will be registration of youths who were born on or after July 1, 1924; but not after August 31, 1924.

Those who were born on or after September 1, 1924, but not after October 31, 1924, will register between December 18th, and December 24th.

Those who were born on or after November 1, 1924, but not after December 31, 1924, will be registered between December 25th and December 31st.

Registration will be conducted each day between the registration periods with the exception of Christmas. The hours of registration will be between 9:00 a. m. and 5:00 p. m.

In Nevada County registrations will be made at Selective Service headquarters in the Court House at Nevada City and in the office of the Sierra Sun at Truckee.

CHMA TO MEET HERE SUNDAY

President George Hallock states that he has an announcement to make regarding the probable resumption of hydraulic mining, as a result of continued efforts made along that line.

DOG TRAINED TO SPOT AIRPLANES

A plane spotter and his wife, names and location a military secret, are training their little fice terrier to listen for airplanes and growl savagely when he hears one. They have found, that well trained as their own ears have been in over a year of reporting plane flights over their lookout station, the dog invariably hears the hum of plane engine several seconds before they do.

SNOW SETS OFF AIR RAID SIRENS

During a snow storm Sunday three air-raid sirens sounded off. Their pull cords became weighted with snow and the wails continued until the Grass Valley wardens could yank the cords and dislodge the snow.

Dan Stewart of the defense council says that this wont happen with the next storm. The sirens are to be connected with a relay electric system by which they can be controlled from the city hall.

ELKS HOLD JOINT MEMORIAL RITES

The Nevada City and Grass Valley Elks held joint memorial exercises last evening in the latter's lodge for the members who have passed away during the year. Nevada Cty lodge has lost ten members and Grass Valley, two. These exercises are alternated yearly between the two lodges.

SALES OF XMAS SEALS AID FIGHT TO BAN DREAD TB

Mrs. Richard Goyne, manager of the Christmas Seals sales in Nevada City this year has placed consignments of Christmas Seals with the Nevada City Nugget, the 5 and 10 stores and the drug stores for the convenience of those who wish to support one of the nation's most important health movements.

The Nevada County Tuberculosis association declares that the nation's first line of defense is good health along the home front. To maintain this skin tests are made each year in the schools to detect the first symptoms of tuberculosis.

All children of the County are offered this test. Pre-school children and adults who desire it are also skin tested. All who react to this skin test are X-rayed and the X-ray read by a chest specialist. This information is then given to the family physician of each person X-rayed. Where re-check X-rays are advised, and the family can not afford the expense, Nevada County Tuberculosis Association arranges for such X-ray to be taken. In this way many children are X-rayed and checked year after year by the use of the Nevada County Tuberculosis funds. Many have been found with early infection who are now entirely healed. A typical example of the Association's work is as follows: A short time ago a child was referred to the Association by a private physician for skin test and X-ray. In checking over the case the entire family was skin tested and X-rayed and, as a result, two children are now enjoying Sanitorium care and three others are under close observation.

MEANEST THIEF MAKES OFF WITH XMAS TREES

H. F. Sofge, secretary of the Nevada City chamber of commerce yesterday complained to Chief of Police Max Solaro that thieves and vandals, had either destroyed or stolen 25 beautiful trees, gathered several days ago for decoration of the streets over the holidays.

The trees had been cut and hauled from the forest by the city's street crew, and were stored in the rear of the city hall in an open yard. Some of them were too tall for use in private homes and these were sawed and the butts left in the yard. More than 100 trees were to be used to adorn the streets, and yesterday the work of placing them began. It is doubtful whether the stolen trees will be replaced.

RANGER HODGSON OFF TO NEW POST

John R. Hodgson, for many years Tahoe Forest ranger at Great Bend on Highway No. 40, has been transferred to Bakersfield where he will hold a supervisory post at a guayule plantation.

Hodgson is known among winter sports followers throughout the state. For the past three or four years he has maintained a first aid station for motorists and skiing devotees at Great Bend. In promoting winter sports in the Great Bend and summit area, he opened several years ago a school for skiers in Sacramento. He has helped to find several venturesome skieers who were lost in the snowy wastes of the high Sierras.

James Wheeler, Hodgson's assistant, has been named as acting ranger for the time being.

FOREFATHERS' DAY

On December 21, 1620, the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock.

That was a long time ago, as a man measures time by the span of his personal life. It was a very short while ago, however, as man looks at history. It is a good and true thought that, in the 322 years since that tiny band set out to carve a tiny niche for precarious living on a hostile shore, the descendents of those hardy men, and others who followed them across the sea, have made vastly greater progress toward a civilization based on the Golden Rule than had been made in all the thousands of years of previous recorded history.

Three brief centuries ago, the principle of religious freedom was not accepted anywhere in the world. It was religious persecution that drove the Pilgrims to their perilous journey—and as soon as they were established in America, they persecuted those who differed with them theologicaly as ruthlessly as they themselves had been persecuted.

The world isn't perfect. Today the world writhes in the horror of universal war. Yet from an American civilization built in three centuries have come to the world Freedom of Religion. Freedom of Speech. Freedom of the Press, Freedom of Political Equality. From that civilization has come to the world the inspiration of the Bill of Rights.

The stupendous advancement in the cause of human rights over-shadows even our great material advancement through invention and industry. It is an advancement that cannot be halted. In 1620. the ideal of a great nation fighting without though of material conquest was foreign to human thought. Today. the American people sacrifice treasure and blood solely to preserve their own priceless freedom and to make freedom secure for men of good will throughout the world.

The era that began on this continent at Plymouth Rock has been glorious beyond the dreams of the men and women who landed there. Despite the heavy clouds of present world calamity, the era of which this war is the beginning may flower to a glory beyond the dreams of men who live and work and fight today.

THE UNCONQUERABLE

In this first war year of 1942, approximately 3 000 000 American babies will have their birth dates — half a million more than were born in 1941, when an all-time American birth record was set!

The birth rate in war-clouded England is rising!

The element of life seems the one unconquerable element in this mysterious world. Even when man himself abets death, setting forth to kill with the deadliest weapons his mind can invent, life remains unconquerable. Even the tremendous blood-letting of World War I, when 8,500.000 men were killed in battle alone, and many millions died from privation, halted but briefly the steady rise in the world's population.

Two centuries ago, the new-born babe had a life expectancy of 33 years. By 1850, in America, the life axerage had reached 40 years. By 1900 it was 50 years. A baby born this year has an even chance of living to the age of 64 years!

Man's achievements in the conquest of disease, in sanitation, in surgery, in nutrition, in hygiene, have alway outstripped his achievements in the destructive sciences of self-destruction through the implements of war.

There is a death in America every 23 seconds.

But a baby is born every 14 seconds!
Life remains the unconquerable.

BEANS ARE FOOD FOR BATTLERS!

Fewer "luxury" vegetables are going to be grown extensively from now on, according to the food program of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, and more work and soil is to be spent on producing the tasty, sturdy, appetite-satisfying and old-fashioned vegetables men in general have always gone for. It's a war measure; but it happens that the things the food experts think the country needs are the things hungry American men welcome on the table—and vice versa.

On the list for increased production in California, for intance, are snap beans, lima beans, plain old beans, peas, carrots and spuds. Corn is thought well of, too. Men who have wearily, for years, scraped sprinklings of parsley off their steaks and disconsolately pecked at watercress, egg plant, broccoli and brussels sprouts, may see a great light toward gustatory reform; for the powers that be don't hand those articles of diet much applause.

If beans, baked long and brown and savory, and corn, and spuds, and peas, and onions you can smother a steak with, are food for battlers, shoudn't they be food of first and exclusive choice for the hard workers of post-war reconstruction? Strength will be needed then, too!

Here seems a chnce for men who have long hated them to take a firm stand against parsley, eggplant, watercress and broccoli. The peace of the family dinner table must be won in this field, when the war is over!

their production goals during 1943 would be penalized by stiff deductions from their federal crop subsidies. As a consequence of these mounting irritations, farm leaders, during recent congressional and legislative committee hearings in California, "blew their tops" and said some things about Washington officials which are wholly unfit to be printed in the congressional record.

"They charged that Washington ignored all their warnings of an impending shortage of farm workers before the last harvest. They charged that "enough vegetables to supply the world next year rotted last harvest time because of lack of pickers;" they charged that Washington was busy putting ceilings on prices for many months before any action was taken to put a ceiling on wages—and that as a consequence, farm labor was drained away by city industries. And they charged that many of the present food shortages are actually food wastages, caused by bungling administration.

"That's a fair sample of the people's temper in the farm belt—and unless something is done to change it, the farm revolt at the polls in 1944 will make the uprising in 1942 seem mild by comparison."

Don Cossacks In Person, Dec. 15 Sacto. Auditorium

Last winter the booted and bloused Don Cossacks rode into Hollywood and laid the film citadel low with a frontal cavalry charge. The Warner Brothers movie lot looked like a Cossack camp in the middle of the Russian Steppes. Director Nosulescus let them loose upon the set with a few crisp orders and as soon as Serge Jaroff gave the sign for the singing to start the cameras began to grind.

The Don Cossacks acted out and sang four songs interspersed with walloping dance. Soon a prize short was completed. It was all done in the record time of nine days. The Don Cossacks would leave the lot at 6 p. m. scramble into cars and race into a neighboring town for a concert. The following morning they would be in front of the cameras by 7 a. m.

You may have seen the picture at your neigrborhood movie. If you have not, you will see and hear the singing giants in the flesh on Tuesday evening, December 15, when they come to Sacramento for another of their stirring concerts at Memorial Auditorium. The Original Don Cossacks are under the management of S. Hurok and will be presented under the ausices of the Sacramento Music Series.

WORMS FOR JAP DIET

Ever wonder what the Japs are doing with all the silk we used to import? Well, according to a Department of Commerce report, they are eating it. Of course they're not lunching on chiffon hose and satin yard goods. The are extracting honorable Vitamen B from honorable silkworm cocoon, to make admirable diet. While nutritionists could not be reached for comment, it is believed the new diet of worms will make a tasty addition to rice and dried fish.

Louie Orzalli s,on of Mrs. Margaret Orzalli of Cement Hill, arrived from Camp Rook, Alabama on Friday for a five day furlough and returned Tuesday.

Recent visitors at the home of Supervisor and Mrs. C. S. Arbogast were their daughter and son in law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Beatty, and granddaughter, of Marysville. Sharon Lee. The babe was a month old November 26 and it was her first trip from home. They were accompanied by Mrs. Shirley also of Marysville.

Mrs. Thomas Arden and three children will leave for Sacramento today to take up their residence there. Mr. Arden, of the Sacramento Bee staff, left for Sacramento about a month ago and was fortunate this week to secure a house for his family. It is a new house which a friend who is entering the service has leased the Ardens.

Irving Long, insurance agent, was able to be about Tuesday for the first time in about ten days. He has been quite ill with flu.

Walter Storie, chef, of for the Athoe National Forest, is a guest at the National Hotel. Ed Martine, also employed on the same federal road project at Camptonville, is spending a few days at home. Many men of the thirty man crew are being sent to guayule rubber projects in southern California or Arbuckle by the federal government where they will act as bosses in the planting program.

SHORTAGES AND WASTES DUE TO VAST BUNGLING

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

It is gradually dawning on the American public that many of our shortages are actually wastages, caused by inept administration of wartime emergency legislation—and that many of the experts directing our "planned economy" have been very inexpert at the jobs assigned them.

Washington officials have been caught "locking the barn door after the horse was stolen" with such regularity that it has become increasingly clear to the people—and particularly to farm people—that shortages have been created where no shortages need have existed, and that other actual war shortages have been aggravated, instead of alleviated, by blundering in the national capital.

It is time that the people at home, and officials in Washington, both make a hard-boiled appraisal of the present situation and the circumstances which led up to it, so that work on the home front can be put on a sound basis—and so that the disastrous mistakes of the past year can be averted in the future.

With the nation confronted with a serious shortage of dairy products, and rationing in immediate prospect, farmers have been forced to slaughter dairy cattle by the thousands, due, primarily, to bungling of wage and price controls. And other dairy farmers, who haven't slaughtered their herds, but are still trying to maintain production, are finding it almost impossible to get milkers.

A survey recently completed indicates that 83 per cent of the men who left the dairy industry in California this year went into war industries at higher wages. The remaining 17 per cent, presumably, went into the armed forces.

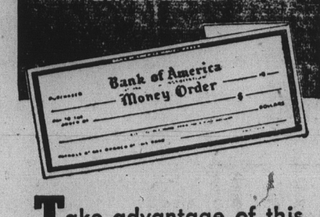

One of the major reasons for that draining of man power away from the dairy industry was that the OPA was busily fixing ceilings on prices for many months before anyone in Washington would listen to the demand of farmers for similar action in putting a ceiling on wages. As a consequence the farmer unable to pay the high wage rates approved by the government for war factories, lost his workers—and started slaughtering his herds. Similarly, while the government has now instructed draft boards to defer certain essential agricultural workers, the order came through too late; tens of thousands already had been drafted—many of them men who can't be replaced without years of training.

In greater or lesser degree, nearly every other branch of the farming industry has been severely handicapped and slowed down in its "food for victory" program by a planned economy that was planned too late, or planned in contravention of all the laws of nature and economics.

A year ago, Washington officials were confidently predicting there would be no serious food shortages in America during this war, while other officials were disregarding the attempts of farmers to prepare for a farm labor shortage by issuing statements assuring the people there would be no shortage of farm workers.

A year ago, when farm organizations asked for such action, a program could have been worked out to bring in trained farm workers from Mexico in sufficient number to have averted the crippling farm labor shortage which played havoc with this year's harvest. But when action finally was taken, it was another case of "too little, too late." That situation simply must not be duplicated with respect to next year's harvest if this country and its allies are to have food for their armies and civilian populations.

LEGISLATURE TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT TAXES

By JOHN W. DUNLAP

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 10.—(UP)—Tax reduction is a perennial subject of discussion in a state capitol but something is likely to be done about it when the 1943 California legislature gets down to the business of disposing of some $75,000,000 in surplus funds.

There are going to be some impulsive members who favor a wholesale slashing of tax levies. Others will take it easy and advocate a general adjustment of most taxes but leave the structure intact in case hard times come to the state ater the war. And there will be special interests, too, seeking special privilege in reduced taxes.

The state will get along nicely on reduced revenues for the next few years and there is little reason to keep high tax rates, when the federal taxes are mounting so steeply. The sales tax offers one fertile field for reductions, particularly on restaurant meals and foods, medicines, and other necessities. Perhaps a lowering of the present 3 per cent rate would suffice.

The state income tax is likely to be lowered or eliminated. The voters opposed such a move last month but the proposition had a "joker" in it which would have forever prevented the legislature from reenacting the levy.

A big field embraces bank and corporation franchise taxes. There are lesser taxes which might be pruned, such as the gift, inheritance, etc. But there's one tax which probably won't be touched—the gasoline tax of three cents per gallon. Lowered driving mileage will play hob with the state's revenue for highway work and maintenance, let alone any tempering from the legislature.
